My dear Tate

I am enclosing a letter from a countryman of yours & a friend of Sili's.

I am willing to help him, but I think the proper channel would be through the Anglo-Catalan Society & the Institut d'Estudis Catalans.

If you agree, I shall write to my brother asking him to get in touch with the Institut, & Hutchinson when in Barcelona could get in touch with the Institut also.
I leave entirely to you to decide how to name the offer. A joint scholarship from the A.C.S. & the
I. d' E. C., perhaps?

I have suggested to Pearce Hutchinson whether he may spend three months in Catalonia, & try to produce a fuller anthology including older poets like Maragall, the Majorcans & Verdagner

For the next Catalan Conference, David Barrass, a young Cambridge historian working now on the origins of Catalan & Spanish liberalism, offers a paper "Political of the Catalan theatre during the Liberal triennium 1820-1822"

The subject of my paper will be "The introduction of Castilian into the Church in Catalonia during the 16th & 17th centuries."

For the public lecture I wonder whether "Gaudi" might be an interesting subject. There is a recent English book on him, but unfortunately I cannot remember just now the name of its author.

Wishing you a very happy holiday

Yours sincerely
