Dear Mr. Russell-Gebbett,

I found your communication on the subject of the proposed Anglo-Catalan Society waiting for me on my return from Spain some time ago. My wife and I have considered the matter and decided that, though we were interested in the project and are in sympathy with what I take to be its aims, our time, energy, attention and material resources are so absorbed by our work and family problems and affairs that we should almost certainly be prevented, at least for some time to come, from taking any part in the activities of the Society, and therefore do not contemplate joining it, much as we should otherwise have liked to do so.

Yours sincerely

Ausine
