Dear Dr. Yates,

I apologise for disturbing you in this manner, but I should be grateful if, as a practising expert in Catalan language and literature, you could furnish me with certain information concerning extant English translations of 20th century Catalan novels and short-stories and any such work which may be at present in progress.

I seek this information in connexion with work I should like to undertake and, as you will understand, the necessity of avoiding duplication is foremost in my consideration.

Repeating my apology for disturbing you, I look forward to hearing from you in due course.

Yours sincerely,

Colin Geary

P.S. I should be grateful if you could reply to the following address :-
